

SEEPS Camp 2022 (Online)

March 17 & 18, 2022

Applications Due: January 17, 2022

Organized by the Society for Environmental Economics and Policy Studies
(SEEPS)

In 2021, the Society for Environmental Economics and Policy Studies (SEEPS) launched a new event called the SEEPS Camp. Following the success of the SEEPS Camp 2021, we are happy to announce that we will organize the SEEPS Camp 2022 in March. The purpose of the Camp is to bring together a small group of outstanding PhD students and young researchers who will lead the SEEPS in the future and to provide them with opportunities to interact with each other. The SEEPS Camp is expected to be a platform for young researchers who engage in environmental economics and policy studies to meet and encourage each other.

Ten participants will present their research plans or outcomes and exchange ideas. They will have an opportunity to join a panel session with mid-career members of the SEEPS who will share how to develop an academic career, and they will also have time to talk with the participants.

The Camp 2022 will be held online. In the future, we plan to organize the Camp in person for two days.
